INTERACTIVE SOLUTIONS, INC. ON THE MOVE
ISI Achieves InfoComm Internationals Highest AVSP Level

MEMPHIS, TN February 24, 2011: Interactive Solutions, Inc. has recently achieved the highest level of Service Provider certification, Diamond Level, that InfoComm International offers to its members. These levels of certification offered by InfoComm are implemented to establish and maintain credibility for businesses within the communications technology industry.

The AVSP levels are based on stringent criteria that require technology integrators to push their staff to achieve high personal standards of certification within video conferencing and audio visual technology. The level integrators have reached, is then determined by the percentage of their staff that have attained InfoComm's CTS, CTS-I, and CTS-D specializations.

The Diamond level AVSP requires integrators to have 50 percent of all technical, sales, and customer service staff to have and maintain general or advanced CTS certifications and InfoComm Academy course completion. By attaining the highest level of AVSP, ISI offers their customers an excelled level of design, installation, and post-installation services than lower certified integrators are capable of providing.

When speaking with ISI's VP of Operations, John DeLockery, about what it meant for ISI to reach this level of certification, Mr. DeLockery stated, " This certification is indicative of ISI's overall commitment to technical excellence and providing the highest level of engineered solutions to our customers."
